WHAT IS APPRENTICESHIP?

*Experience has demonstrated that the most practical and sound method of preparing workers for employment in skilled construction crafts occupations is through planned apprenticeship.

*Apprenticeship is a time-honored training and skill development method, that provides for employment and training of unskilled construction craft trainees under actual job conditions supervised by skilled craft workers.

*In addition, the Apprentice's knowledge and understanding of the occupation is enhanced through participation in approved courses of related and supplemental instruction.

*Apprenticeships benefit the apprentices, the community and the construction industry by developing highly skilled workers.

What is the ICITC?

*Idaho Construction Industry Training Council (ICITC) manages open shop apprenticeship programs for the construction industry in Idaho. ICITC is a recognized training council for the United States Department of Labor Apprentice Training, Employer and Labor Services (USDOL ATELS).

*Enjoy the many benefits of joining ICITC apprenticeship training programs. An 11 member Board of Directors from all areas of Idaho provides guidance and direction to all Idaho trainees that join and become a part of an USDOL ATELS approved Apprenticeship program.
